

Wild Atlantic Shanty Festival

Rosses Point

Adding a little salt to your music

FRIDAY 16th - SUNDAY 18th June 2017

See overleaf for Workshops

MalinWaters®

Fáilte Ireland
National Tourism Development Authority

WILD ATLANTIC WAY

SLIGO
CARAVAN & CAMPING

Workshops

Admission Free

Saturday 17th June 2017
Festival Marquee 3-5pm

All you ever wanted to know about Sea Shanties

PROGRAMME

The origins of Shanty Singing

Lead: Mr Bernie Davis

The use of Shanties to support the working of a Tall Sailing Ship

Lead: Mr Jim Corr

Sea Shanties from Scandanavia

Lead: 'Tidens Brus' Group
from Åland Islands, Finland

Bernard Davis:

Is the UK's most authoritative experts on the origins and history of the Sea Shanty as an art form. He has produced many workshops on the genre and its interaction and relationship with other musical genres. Bernie has appeared on numerous television productions on the subject and regularly talks and performs throughout Europe.

Jim Corr:

Spent the majority of his career on board tall Sailing Ships, and is one of the few exponents now of Shanty Singing that has actually used the songs as they were originally designed to assist the workings of a Crew on board a tall ship. Jim has considerable experience in developing and delivering workshops on the matter at Shanty events throughout Europe. He is particularly committed to sharing his knowledge with young people.

Tidens Brus:

Tidens Brus is a music project that places traditional Åland songs in a contemporary musical context without compromising with tradition. They have a special interest for shanties and sea songs. These songs are veritable "time machines", they give us a unique glimpse into the life on board the wind-jammers and the thoughts of the old times. The workshop will be a fun opportunity to learn a Scandanavian Shanty.

Group members: Catherine Frisk Gronberg, award winning voice coach and opera singer, Kjell Frisk, woodwind teacher, Marianne Haggblom and Kim Hansson, folk music duo and winners of the Stockholm Folk award.